Mineworkers Election Invalid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government sued Thursday and the results of last year's United Mine Workers election, charging widespread irregularities in President W.A. "Boyle's re-election over the late Joseph A. Yablonski.

Tony of Labor George P. said the Justice Department filed suit in federal court here under the Civil Rights Act, asking the court to void the results of the December balloting and order a new election.

The suit asked also court orders to bar the union from spending money without reporting to the Labor Department as required by law, and to require the keeping of proper records.

The government charged that:

1. The union failed to provide adequate safeguards to insure a fair election and allowed campaigning at the polls.

2. The union denied candidates the right to have observers at polling places and at the counting of the ballots.

3. The union failed to conduct its election in accordance with its constitution, including "The failure of many local unions to elect tellers and to hold a membership meeting to set the time and place of the election."

4. The union "failed to elect its international officers by secret ballot among the members in good standing."

Student Relations Abolishment Sought

In a stormy session Wednesday, the Executive Council dispersed all the functions of the Student Relations Office to other offices in preparation for doing away with the office.

But the Council came to an impasse when they voted on the abolition of the office. Therefore, the office exists, but it has no duties.

The Council will, however, vote at its next meeting to break the tie when its two absent members return.

The problem was brought to the Council because there have been ambiguities of function between the public relations activities of the Student Relations office and of the Executive Vice-President.

Bill Hepworth, who started the discussion, and ASBYU President Ken Kartchner, felt the rest of the Student Relations office's activities did not warrant a separate president.

Student government adviser Bob Baird suggested that, if they really wanted to abolish Student Relations, they should first redistribute the things it does.

With nothing left for the office to do, it would be easy, he said, to abolish the office itself.

Undaunted, Kartchner moved that the public relations function, the elections committee and the Human Relations Committee all be under the President's Office.

The orientation program was held under the direction of Bob Baird. By a vote of 4-3, the Council approved the move with two abstentions. The Council then voted not to put off the vote to eliminate the office, but when the big vote came, the Council tied, 4-4, with one abstention.

The vote was then put off, because of the tie.

In the aftermath of the attempted elimination, Hepworth has changed his mind about the abolishment of the Student Relations office. He now thinks the Executive Vice-President should be eliminated instead.

The NCAA basketball tournament begins Saturday night with nine games. In the Far West playoffs Cal State Long Beach meets Weber State at 7 p.m., and Texas-El Paso faces Utah State at 9 p.m.

Both games will telecast by KUTV, channel 2, from the George Albert Smith Fieldhouse.

Partial Solar Eclipse Occurs At 10:47 Saturday Morning

Tomorrow's solar eclipse as seen from the Provo area will reach its greatest magnitude at 10:47 a.m., at which time the moon's shadow will blot out about 35 percent of the sun's surface area.

Those viewing the eclipse are warned not to look directly at the sun. According to Dr. D. Harold McNamara of the Physics Dept., the safest way to view the eclipse is to stand facing away from the sun, holding a card with a pinhole in it behind oneself and using it to focus the sun's rays on any white surface. Sunglasses are unsafe and McNamara also warned against the use of exposed photographic film as "many, many thicknessees" are required to avoid serious eye damage.

Scientific interest in the event remains quite high, as the last solar eclipse visible in the United States occurred in 1963 and the next will not take place until 2024.

A total of 66 rockets will be fired toward the sun from bases in the United States, Canada, and Mexico. Three artillery guns at Wallops Island will fire 12 instrument packages 60 miles into the atmosphere, and two jet aircraft carrying researchers and their equipment will chase the eclipse eastward to allow astronomers more time to view the phenomenon.

BYU's Weather

The forecast for today will be partly cloudy with chances of rain. The low will be between 20 and 25 degrees and the high will be in the mid-40's. The outlook for the rest of the week and the weekend is fair and mild.

Changes In Semester Can Be Accomplished

The problems of the year change situation are not, in our opinion, as complex as has been professed.

There are, to be sure, arguments against ending the school year in early May, but we feel, the advantages far outweigh the disadvantages and BYU could without much continuing trouble, change to such a system.

Ricks College, another Mormon institution and therefore a school with about the same kind of problems as BYU, presently has a school year ending in early May and ending the first semester before Christmas.

Although that school must have had the same problems with field trips and spring sports that are now envisioned for BYU, it has gotten over them without any visible side-effects.

We submit the biggest problem in any proposed change is overcoming the inertia of rest that comes with tradition.

Certainly the University will have problems to overcome. Plans for classes will have to be changed, the budget may have to be shifted to fit a new schedule, even the building operation schedule and job schedules must be changed.

But that is no reason not to try to get such a plan. Students can get better jobs if they get out of school earlier. With better chances for summer jobs, the students will be less tempted to work during the year and neglect their studies.

Faculty members and students alike will not have to be bothered spending Christmas writing research papers, or studying for tests, or grading them. For students and faculty members with heavy schedules, they would have a real two-week vacation.

What's been done this year? Student leaders, the faculty advisory council, a special group headed by Assistant Vice-President of Academics Robert J. Smith have been working for months this year on specific proposals.

Although red tape may seem to be strangling the program, it has made it all the way to the Board of Trustees.

Dr. Robert K. Thomas, vice-president of Academics has said that the Board is disinterested and that they could have a decision later this semester.

If they decide to change the decision will go into effect in the fall of 1972. Until then, we suggest that all parties try to make the present program bearable.

To students, let's try to get jobs before the school year is over and try to keep up on our school so that we don't have to spend Christmas vacation catching up.

To faculty members, let's try not to make the burden of students over the holidays more than is absolutely necessary. To do that, let's try to distribute the work load earlier in the semester and not spend January trying to catch up.

Above all, let's keep our ears open to news from the Board and accept their decision and their reasons for making it.

The Marquee: Needed?

Somewhere along the line, a question of priorities must be developed. Somewhere along the line, someone should find something better to do with $10,000 than spend it on a large ostentatious marquee.

What is really important in this life and at this college? Flashing our activities across one horrendous sign like "Hollywood Palace?" Building a 20-foot high edifice, which in the opinion of some, only detracts from the beauty of the surroundings?

No one should hope that these things are not what is important here and now in this campus.

Here are just two ideas that were thought up in 10 minutes—the marquee idea must have been pondered for one second.

Number one: The money could be used to start a scholarship fund for needy students.

Number two: The money could be used to bring some really outstanding speakers to campus—they cost that much.

And these are just two. There are surely other ideas of what to do with $10,000 of your money.

Wolsey: Man On The Spot

Dr. Heber Wolsey was appointed to his present position as Assistant to the President in charge of Communications at the beginning of the new year. He quit some distinguished business careers to return to Michigan State to obtain his doctorate. After receiving his Ph.D., he returned to BYU to teach, and it was from there that he received his present assignment.

In this position he has been intimately involved in the racial disturbances that have plagued BYU this past year and has helped chart the University's response to them.

Q. Dr. Wolsey, exactly what are your responsibilities as Assistant to the President in charge of Communications?

A. There are three main areas which I am directly responsible for: a. communication services (which include educational media, electronic media, photo studio, broadcast services and motion picture production.) b. University press (which includes all the BYU press facilities and all their varied activities) and c. University relations. This last area includes the BYU News Bureau, Programs Bureau and general public relations for the University. It is my responsibility in this last area that necessitated my recent trip to the Southwest.

Q. Last week the basketball team went to El Paso and Albuquerque to play UTEP and New Mexico. You accompanied them to meet with concerned students of these schools and to answer any questions they had concerning BYU and the Negro.

How successful do you feel your visit was?

A. I think it is helpful anytime you can let people know what you believe in. In this light it has been a great success. A local journalist in El Paso grabbed me after the meeting and said, "I may not agree with your doctrine but you'll never know how much good you've done by coming and talking with us." I think this speaks better than anything I could say as to the merits of such a trip.

HEBER WOLSEY

Q. Specifically, what were some of the questions asked of you by these students?

A. To begin with it was an open forum-type meeting and kept on an informal basis. They were mainly concerned with why the Negro is not allowed to hold the priesthood and other related doctrines of the Church.

Q. Did they seem responsive to what you b say?

A. Very responsive course there are the minority of hard core who are not interested in anybody who has to say, but who came with an open mind will be helped by explanation of our position.

Q. How much did students actually know about BYU?

A. Not too much. Much of their information was stereotyped. There seemed many anti-Mormon public available to them and this is to be the sources of many ideas about our beliefs.

Q. Is this program of yours to other campuses in order to misrepresentations continue?

A. Let me put it like this: are willing to go anywhere anytime in order to explore position as long as it is helpful to both sides.

Q. What are some of the programs being instituted at the University to avoid conflicts in the future?

A. We are constantly seeking new ideas in this area with our relationship with Negro people and with schools in the Western Conference. Any ideas developed to help us strong competitive Western Athletic Conference we are.

LONG HAIR

Editor:

I have seen very few boys with long hair on campus. As a student I found it difficult to distinguish between BYU standards you can see that his hair will grow or he will. There have been quite a few times where boys have had to sit back out of the room after school. I don't believe BYU is lenient when it comes to hair length. What does one do if he has to go to a friend who has gone through the temple with his hair well past his shoulder blades? Is it worthy to enter the house of the Lord, isn't he worthy to enter BYU?

However, the point I'm trying to make is that BYU students will set a good example for the members of the Church. BYU's high moral standards have made us known as two extremes, Mr. Grange. We want the youth of the church to look up to BYU as an institution of ambition and high moral values, not as an institution of old fogies.

Is it not to be a standard belief for truth and light shouldn't we be in the minority? I am old enough to remember when the movie theaters suggested that we buyout these movies. Secondly, why is there no leadership being shown in this valley? It is not the students that are causing the community? The old edge that every experience we become has a part of our character should make a part of our character. I am not suggesting ideals to be a part of their character? We are warned to "shun even the appearance of evil" based, because of this "in our mortal bodies we are mortal numbered" we are inviting it.

SUGGESTIONS

Editor:

A March 2 editorial proposed the "obvious answer" of a tutor as a means of improving students' performances in their classes. I suggest some more options be considered before such a move should resort before seeking a tutor. At the very least, for each course worth three credits, there aren't cross-referencing them to the text and to other chapters. 7. At least once a week attend the three-hour study period one currently being studied. If things still aren't clear, haunt the teacher's office. It is possible that he may be able to help you with such about the subject as a tutor does.

Before class, 1. In my class read at least one chapter more than has been assigned. 2. Read at least one book on the subject matter of the text. During class, 3. Listen. Take notes. Take notes. 5. Ask questions. After class, 6. As soon as possible, write up the class-room notes in detail.

If such a minimal regimen seems too demanding, remember that a student can do more than one thing at a time vigorously; one who takes piano, for example, may be invited to

APPRECIATION

Editor:

It's time I expressed my appreciation especially to the students who come to our campus from a variety of cultures throughout America and other lands. To mention just two groups: On Feb. 7 we was invited to celebrate the Chinese New Year at the Chinese Center in the Orient. The food was delicious, but no match for the entertainment that followed. I must go along with the warmth I felt as they shared their culture, food, songs, dances, and traditions—with me.

Earlier today I watched our Indian students dancing traditional and modern dances at the Indian Center patio. The dances were preceded and followed by a fashion show with the Indian students in traditional and modern western dress demonstrating their flexibility in a

Surely our campus is richer because these students are willing to give of themselves. I would like to thank one, went to thank them for enriching our university experience. Indeed, they give meaning to the motto. "The world is our campus."

'Y' Students Advised To Check Tax Return

Recheck your 1969 Federal Income tax return before sending it in. The time spent may prevent delays in processing the return and speed up any refund due, said Roland V. Wise, District Director of Internal Revenue for Utah.

The taxpayer can catch income or deductions he has omitted or errors in arithmetic. Check also whether the pre-addressed label is attached to the return, all W-2 Forms are enclosed and the return is signed.

Utah's Office of Taxation also urged taxpayers to use the right tax table or rate schedule in computing their 1969 Federal Income tax. There are separate tax tables for single persons, unmarried heads of household, married couples filing jointly and married couples filing separate returns, he said.

Computation from the wrong tax table results in the wrong tax deduction, which, as a result of the error, receive a smaller, or larger refund and others receive a bill for additional tax.

Other reasons for refund delay are failure to include correct Social Security number, arithmetic errors, and tax returns filed without signatures which have to be returned before they can be processed.

Mr. Wise advised that your Social Security number should be included on the tax form you send for tax payment to make sure your account is properly credited. It will also help to write on the payment what it is for.

Payments that can't be identified must be set aside for research and, as a result, the taxpayer may get a bill. The payment cannot be credited to the taxpayer's account until he has provided the IRS the necessary information to identify his payment, Mr. Wise said.

As for deductible contributions, Mr. Wise said that they can consist of cash or other property. He added, they must be made to qualifying organizations such as the Heart Association, Red Cross, CARE, Boy Scouts, United Funds and Community Chests, churches, nonprofit schools and hospitals, and certain war veteran groups.

LBJ Watched Close

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson experienced a "bad night," and was awakened several times by pains in the chest and left arm, doctors reported today.

A medical bulletin said Lt. Col. Robert Nort had a pain in the chest that was not associated with any change in the president's heart sounds, vital signs or electrocardiogram.

The report added, quoting Dr. North, "There was nevertheless an unusual factor because this pain interferes with the president's rest."

The bulletin also said Dr. North emphasized "that the overnight troubles are more troublesome from the standpoint of restlessness than anything else, reiterating that anything which disturbs the president's sleep is 'obviously something we want to control.'"

Doctors are watching Johnson very closely because of his massive heart attack in 1955 from which he recovered completely.

Chissell Tells Of Dance Marathons

Chissell himself holds the Solo Walkathon Endurance Record of 468 hours while at Jack Kearns' Hollywood Show in 1934. His first partner, Betty Jones, dropped from exhaustion. She was the girlfriend of his fight manager who trained him while he received the 1932 Navy Middleweight Champion title.

Next, Marianne Mulligan lost her partner after she failed to return home. Esther Rockelle, the third partner, gave up. From then on, he danced alone. "The hardest possible thing is to stay awake when there is no partner's shoulder to rest on," he commented.

The toughest walkathon of all, held in Seattle, Wash., also saw Chissell as a winner. He explained, "There was only a two-minute rest period in each hour, and they made us do the duckwalk, a tortuous exercise that put knots in our legs," he said.

The last two days and nights of 1,492 hour winning time, Chissell carried his partner on the toes of his shoes. "I told the floor judge the rules didn't say that your feet had to be on the floor—just in motion. There were a few guys that tried to get me kicked out in other ways, but I'll tell about that in my life story," he said.

In Ogden, Utah, was the Super Walkathon. He said that "there's one thing about the Mormons, they never let you go hungry." The promoter, a Mormon with an interest in an Ogden Valley Hotel, let them lodge free with food for a few nights when the show was closed after 900 hours of dancing.

COURSE DESCRIPTION: Because of Mr. Daniell's genuine concern with the practical aspects of interior design as a means of enhancing home living, he has prepared a course that will have a broad appeal to many groups.

TOPICS TO BE DISCUSSED:

- Basic design as related to the home
- Discussion and demonstration of color and its use
- Overview of furniture design
- Room and furniture arrangements
- Planning home layouts

Levin that more of Shakespeare wasn't edited during acting scenes. With Franco Zeffirelli's his "Romeo and Juliet" set at the puce, it would appear to more appreciated by modern audiences.

However, Burr was lacking with his manner, tiring. That was changing from the scene to the comically sarcastic as a Polonius. More than that, he made such changes plausible. Performance was commendable, but no more than that.

Harvey Sohn as Laertes fell into his part like a fish into water because he loved the feel of it. He swam with the right amount of grace and courtesy.

Ophelia, played by Margo Bechovsky, did an outstanding job with her insane scenes. She had the eyes of everyone following her capable movement.

'Hamlet At BYU'

By DALE VAN ATTA
Staff Writer

The air of expectancy that waited as the curtains opened to the first performance of "Hamlet" was something that seemed to stay with the audience throughout the play. The audience waited for stellar performance and was disappointed at what was a good play.

The first few moments and lines suffered inertia pains while the audience got used to the stage: a simple setting with a few bars and crosses that varied throughout the play through the use of light colors and shadows.

But Frederic Warrener as the ghost of the dead king brought a strength to the stage as his voice trembled from indignant sorrow, while Hamlet watched in awe the definite hand gestures and vaguely mysterious movements that captured the imagination.

As Polonius too, Warrener turned out an excellent portrayal—probably the best—in this role. His reaction to everything spoken, his meddlesome attitude, his expressions and comical voice inflection took the audience through alternate feelings of humor, concern and annoyance.

Support, though, was lacking from the evil King, played by Dan Holden, and Gertrude, mother of Hamlet, played by Linda Hart, who didn't demand a force that made this ambitious brother a king. Gertrude was a non-event. When one did realize she was on stage, she almost seemed too wishy-washy to be real.

Robert Burr, as Hamlet, suffered under critical eyes more than any other actor. His acting came in spurts: during one he could handle the "Oh, that this too, too solid flesh would melt," but in another he would rush over the "To be or not to be . . ." soliloquy and make it mediocre.

It is a fault of Director Peter O'Toole that he insisted on having Solin as Laertes fall into his part like a fish into water because he loved the feel of it. He swam with the right amount of grace and courtesy.

Ophelia, played by Margo Bechovsky, did an outstanding job with her insane scenes. She had the eyes of everyone following her capable movement.

Holly's Hollywood

'Butch,' 'Water' Highlight Film Fare

By HOLLY SMITH
Managing Editor

Good movies around in Provo this week—there's one that you can even take your kids to see.

Nothing much remains to be said about "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." It has been nominated for seven Academy Awards, including best picture.

It should have been nominated for eight, the extra one for Paul Newman in his role as Butch. Newman's acting is the best he's done since "Hud," which is a long time between pictures.

As the aging cowboy who just cannot give up his train robberies, Newman is excellent. He is fascinating as he wheels and deals to keep control of his gang and outwits both younger members and the law.

Newman plays right down to his greying temples as he whines and groans his way into a perfectly empathetic relationship with the audience.

One should not dwell only on Newman alone, but he is good. Robert Redford and Katharine Ross simply don't have the characters to match Butch.

Of course, the story is an interesting one and the photography is quite good. One particular note are the scenes when Newman, Ross and Redford are on the East Coast. The use of the old-fashioned still pictures is clever and useful.

Most importantly, the frozen-action shot at the end of the film is truly effective. The viewer fully gets the picture that it's all over for Butch and Kid.

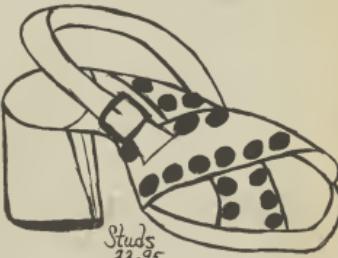

The film to take the whole family to see is "Ring of Bright Water" playing at the Pioneer Drive-In. One should not be deceived though—the film is not just for the kiddies.

It is the story of a man who gets tired of the busy rush of his life and takes off to Scotland. He then attempts to live as free as possible, and of course, encounters problems with . . .

The children will love the otter in the film and his adventures, and the adults will be enthralled with a strong story line. An added plus is the beautiful Scottish scenery.

Those with only 35 cents to spend: Though not nearly up to the novel, "Far From the Madding Crowd" is a good film.

Swim Championships Continue Today

By WALLY RUGG
Asst. Sports Editor

The eighth annual Western Athletic Conference Swimming and Diving Championships got underway in Salt Lake City yesterday and will continue through today and Saturday.

The meet, being held in the Redskins' new natatorium just north of the Special Events Center, will continue today and Saturday, with two and one-half hours of competition per day's events. Preliminaries and time trials begin at 1 p.m. both days, while the evening sessions are scheduled for 8 p.m.

Student tickets are $1 for all sessions, except for Saturday night's finals where they will cost $1.50.

Host Utah is in search of its eighth consecutive title, but for the first time in the history of the WAC, they are not playing the definite favorite role.

Colorado State's Rams and the BYU Cougars will offer formidable opposition for the defending champion Redskins.

The WAC front office summed up the race this way: Colorado State has super front-line strength but little depth; BYU has super depth but a little front-line strength. BYU has good depth and good front-line strength.

Depth becomes the major factor in the WAC meet because points are awarded for the first 12 places in each event. This fact makes predictions in such a meet almost impossible.

On dual meet form, BYU would rank as a slight favorite. The Cougars swamped Utah last week, 68-45, and earlier edged Colorado State, 60-53. The Rams in turn edged Utah, 61-52.

After looking at these statistics, it would seem that the defending champion Utes are out of it, but remember that super depth.

Based on careful calculations of scores, the WAC champion title could easily be decided on the final relay of the Saturday night session. It could be just that close!

For the first time in the history of the championships, three-meter diving is scheduled, bringing to 18 the total number of events in the contest. Nine defending champions are back for this year's meet.

Results of Thursday's events were not available at press time, but here are the schedule of events for today.

- 1 p.m. Today-time trials
- 2 200-yard butterfly
- 3 200-yard freestyle
- 4 100-yard backstroke
- 5 50-yard butterfly
- 6 50-minute interval
- 7 400-yard individual medley
- 8 p.m. Today-finals
- 1 200-yard butterfly
- 2 200-yard freestyle
- 3 100-yard backstroke
- 4 50-yard butterfly
- 5 30-minute diving exhibition
- 6 400-yard individual medley
- 7 800-yard freestyle relay
- 8 noon Saturday
- 9 1650-yard freestyle relay
- 10 last but last time of time trials.

NCAA Tourney Starts Here

By MIKE TWITTY
University Sports Editor

The NCAA basketball tournament begins tomorrow night with nine teams of the 25 team field qualifying for the regional playoffs which will be held next Thursday and Saturday.

Two games will take place in the George Albert Smith Fieldhouse, with the winners moving on to Seattle and the losers wishing they had gone to the NIT where they might have done better.

Big Sky Champ Weber State takes an under-rated, but dangerous Cal State-Los Angeles at 7 p.m., and Western Athletic Conference winner Texas-El Paso meets independent Utah State at 9 p.m.

In other playoff games independents Houston and Dayton clash at Fort Worth, Tex., followed by New Mexico State and Southwest Conference winner Rice.

At Dayton, Ohio, Notre Dame meets Ohio, champ of the Mid-American Conference, and Jacksonville clashes with Western Kentucky, the Ohio Valley champs.

The playoff for the Eastern Regional is being held at three places. At New York, St. Bonaventure faces Davidson of the Southern Conference. Pennsylvania of the Ivy League meets Niagara at Princeton, N.J., and Villanova and Temple collide in Philadelphia.

Saturday's first clash at the George Albert Smith Fieldhouse features Cal State-Los Angeles (22-3) against Weber State (24-5).

The 49ers downed the University of Nevada-Las Vegas 94-90, Tuesday night to go into the playoff tied with Pennylvania.

Cal State comes to town with a balanced attack led by 6'8" George Trapp, who leads the team in scoring with a 16 point per game average.

Trapp is followed by five of his teammates in double figures, 6'6" forward Billy Jankans (12.9), 6'7" forward Sam Robinson (12.3), 6'0" guard Ray Grittorn (10.4), 6'1" guard Dwight Taylor (10.7) and 6'4" guard Shaw Johnson (10.1).

Weber State beat Seattle Wednesday, 77-72, in their 20th meeting. The Wildcats have captured the Big Sky crown five of the last six years and in 1969 beat New Mexico State to finish third in the Far West Regional.

Weber's attack is built around junior Willie Sojourner. The 6'8" 220 lb. pivot man is scoring 21.5 points per game and hauling in 16.5 rebounds per contest.

Other double figure scorers are Sessions Harlan (12.9) and 6'5" forward Kent Ross (11.4).

The Wildcats are among the top 20 defensive teams in the country giving up only 66.6 points per game.

Texas-El Paso prepared for the NCAA playoff by losing its last WAC game to New Mexico, 78-70. The Miners are the only team in the last six years other than UCLA to win the national championship. UTEP (then Texas Western) upset Kentucky in the 1966 finals to capture the crown.

BYU Nine Ready For Road Trip

By BOB OAKLEY
Ass't Sports Editor

The cry around the Fieldhouse lately seems to be "another long road trip." As the basketball team made its annual grueling trip so will the BYU baseball team. But Coach Glen Tuckett isn't very concerned. In fact he's pretty confident of coming back to Provo with a good record.

The Cougar horseheads leave next Wednesday for six games in a three-day series. They open with a doubleheader next Wednesday with the Marlies, then have doubleheaders with San Francisco and California.

They return to Provo March 14, then start west again for a

Intramural Notes

Scroopy has declined an invitation to compete in the men's intramural Petalsums wrist-wrestling championship this year because of the press of his duties as Head Beagle, but you can still enter if you hurry to the Intramurals Office at 112 Richards P.E. Building.

Todays is the deadline for entries into handball doubles and both intramural volleyball and Men-men volleyball.

Several new events have been added to the schedule for this year. Included in this category are a pike-fishing tournament, a tiddly-winks championship and a darts championship.

The pike-fishing contest entries will close next Friday at 5 p.m. The contest entries will be held on a Saturday during the first or second week of the pike run. This run will probably begin within the next 10 days so the tournament will likely be held March 14 or March 21.

Awards will be given in four categories including the first fish caught, the longest, the heaviest and the first limit (two) caught. Each participant must furnish his own gear and have the proper fishing license.

Since there will be a specific area to fish and several other items to check, participants are urged to pick up an information sheet at the Intramurals Office.

The tournament will be covered by at least one of the local TV stations and by the PROVO HERALD.

nine-game trip in the Anaheim Tournament which will last until the last day of the month.

Coach Tuckett and his pitching coach Vernon Law are pretty optimistic about the season. They have nailed down their opening lineup for the first half, with Doug Howard at first base, Lee Berge at second base, Mike Staffieri at shortstop and Gerald Cardon at third. In the outfield will be Daine Iorg, Butch Fairbanks and Mike Follett.

As far as his pitching staff is progressing, Coach Tuckett is pretty sure of Brad Meyring and

"we'll go out," commented Tuckett.

Utah has already played several games this season but Tuckett says that, "We like playing our freshmen better than going up to Weber and beating them 18-1 in five innings as Utah did... Weber didn't even have uniforms."

The team is loaded with experience and competition. At first base will be a familiar face to BYU sports fans, Doug Howards. Howards made the transition from basketball hardwoods to the baseball field after only one days rest.

Steve Easton as being two of his starters.

The Cougars will be playing in the Anaheim Tournament this year for the first time, as they have previously played in the Riverside Tournament. But Riverside officials didn't want to invite BYU this year because of the chance of racial problems. But the baseballers won't lose much by changing partners as they will meet such fine teams as USC, Oregon and Cal. State at Fullerton.

The squad has been outside quite a bit lately as the warm weather occasionally breaks through. "If there's less than four inches of snow on the ground

At second base will be Lee Berge, a converted shortstop, who hit .280 last year has just about the best pair of hands on the squad.

An shortstop will be sophomore Mike Staffieri who had a good year with the frosh last year. Tuckett expects him to work into the lineup from the beginning.

At third base will be Gerald Cardon who will add a big bat to an already powerful BYU hitting lineup.

The Cougars number one doubles team of Pat Landau and Larry Hall proved to be a major obstacle for the opposition to overcome, as this dynamic duo were defeated in doubles competition.

Another event on the club's agenda this Spring will be "The Westfield Trip." It is planned because the trips will be along the west side of Utah Lake to Springville, with an optional trip to Benjamin.

Since the lake is in its floodstage at this time, many interesting forms of wildlife will be observable by the cyclists. Certain mentioned.

On a bicycle you can see a lot of things you would not be able to see in a car. We've seen deer, coyotes, bobcats right on the road, as we come up on them so quickly. We're not afraid of them and they don't seem to be afraid of us."

Several of the club's members have performed outstanding feats in cycling competitions. One member, Jack Hattaway, a senior at the University from Big Bear Lake, Calif., has raced in Canada and Mexico, and has won several cycling medals. Another member last year made the news as he rode his bicycle from Provo, Utah, to Rockford, Ill., his hometown. Several other members have raced cycles in California, which has the closest bicycle racing track to Utah.

Deans To Meet On Y Campus

Deans of students from the four-year colleges in Utah will be meeting together today to discuss common problems and to compare notes.

BYU is the host campus for the day-long meeting which will be attended by the deans of students from Weber College, Utah State University, University of Utah, the College of Southern Utah and BYU.

A similar meeting was held last December when it was decided to hold a second conference prior to the end of the current school year.

Among topics under discussion today will be BYU's off-campus housing program.

Mobil Oil Displays No-Pollution Auto

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Mobil Oil Corp. displayed Wednesday an experimental auto which it said reduces emissions of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide to below levels prescribed in clean air standards proposed for 1975.

Mobil showed a 1969 Ford with an internal combustion engine. The car had been modified with a catalytic converter and other pollution control devices.

BYU Reactor Unpretentious, But Best For School Needs

Nuclear reactors . . . most people think of huge installations manned by scores of personnel.

BYU is a reactor, but it is no such animal. It is so unpretentious that most students are unaware of its existence.

Producing just 10 watts of power, it is housed along with an electron accelerator in a small building just south of the Grant Building.

Dr. Gary Jensen of the Physics Dept., describes the reactor as being perfect for BYU's needs. It is safe and designed especially for safety.

This reactor was built by Atomics International in Canoga Park, Calif., in 1958. The company had included this reactor in an exhibition that toured the world. They then wanted to sell it and through the efforts of Jim Henry, an LDS employee of the firm, they arranged to sell it to BYU at a low price to get a tax advantage. The reactor went critical at BYU in September 1961.

Since that time the reactor has been used primarily for student instruction, although lately more research has been conducted. Wheat and radish seeds have been irradiated to test possible biological effect. A recent experiment used activation analysis to test the amount of migration of various metals. Activation analysis is useful in determining the presence of materials not detectable by chemical means.

A Nuclear Engineering Program is being developed.

Jones added that the council, in times past, has made bad decisions, but today it is one of the most "objective and bipartisan organizations in Washington." "The role of the council is to evaluate the quality of our service," he said, "that it must compete with the economic advisers found in the other agencies of government."

In regard to present economic conditions, the speaker emphasized that "we are in a degenerate transition period. The council feels that by mid-1970 real output will be increasing and the rate of price increases will decline." Thus, Jones estimated that growth of the economy will be around five percent.

Dr. Jones felt that although the Nixon Administration is favorable to free markets, and the use of monetary policy with fiscal responsibility, "Most modifications in economic policy are not a result of a change in government administration, but rather from a change in conditions."

Personnel ShortagePost Office Not Equal To Needs

BYU's post office, the fifth largest post office in Utah, is likened to a "small pipe that's trying to empty a huge reservoir," by Harold S. Hintze, director of campus mailing services.

Hintze, explaining the problems of the post office and the connected problems of students, said he is able to hire only full-time employees.

Since the post office holds a contract with the U.S. government, but isn't a regular sub-division, no more employees can be hired to help the students who often have to stand in long lines for postal service. However, BYU does provide four part-time employees during noon and rush periods.

Hintze says the government supervises those three employees and gives them money and gives unannounced government audits. "If I had any others, I would be in dutch," he commented.

The Mail Service Dept. is required to separate official BYU mail from personal mail, and affixes postage on official University mail only. Hintze states that some people send mail without a full return address, necessitating the opening of the mail to determine whether it is official or personal, and if it is personal, returning the mail to the sender for correct postage.

"Even though this causes delay and inconvenience, it is the only way to eliminate serious mailing problems," he explained.

The campus mail service delivers mail between BYU buildings and mail between students addressed to Deseret Towers and Helaman Halls. However, mail to Heritage Halls, Wymount Terrace and Wyview Village requires stamps.

Hintze stated that the mail service was designed for conduct of University business and not for the convenience of those renting University housing.

The Mail Service Dept. is located in the University Press Bldg. offers valuable assistance to clubs, organizations, or those matters of official University business by its bulk rate postage and other services.

Automatic typewriters are available to type a number of forms such as those such as those that graduate or undergraduate students need prepared to send to prospective employers. By contacting the Mail Service Dept. students with qualifying reasons may write the letter they want typed and the automatic typewriters, operated by student employees, will provide as many copies as necessary.

This machinery, operated by 14 student employees, on the campus mailing service, folds addresses, inserts service labels, and applies postage to each envelope.

Hintze revealed an interesting fact about the mail which leaves the University by saying that BYU's post office sends out an extremely high percentage of its mail out of state and out of the U.S.

WHO SAID pow wows are just for Indians? On March 7, 14, 21, over 1,500 Boy Scouts, from south, central and eastern US, are expected to invade BYU for the 13th Annual Merit badge Pow Wow, sponsored by the Utah National Parks Council.

Boy Scouts To Meet At Annual Pow Wow

Over 1,500 Boy Scouts from Central and Southern Utah will gather at BYU March 7, 14 and 21 for the 13th Annual Boy Scout Merit Badge Pow Wow.

The series is sponsored by the Utah National Parks Council and Special Courses and Conferences

The pow wow, enjoyed thousands of boys in recent years, is organized to give second class rank or qualified instruction in merit badge fields of their choice. This instruction will prepare them to complete their merit badges in their respective districts.

Rulon Dean Skinner, the powwow program director, member of the BYU Leadership Dept. and a native of the professional faculty on the National S. Boy Scouts of America.

Instruction will be given by BYU professors and regular badge counselors who will be their guides for the entire program. Following the assembly, each scout will earn any three of 46 merit badges.

This instruction will be beneficial for the boy scouts said. "The instructional materials for merit badges are conveniently available."

BYU STUDENTS Susan Kartchner, Rachel Wallace and Bill Southwick interrupt their souvenir hunting in Toledo, Spain, for an impromptu snapshot. They're part of BYU's Semester Abroad in Madrid.

Madrid Group Happy

Blue sky, sunshine, what a way to spend the month of school! After three weeks in Europe, BYU's Semester in Madrid students couldn't be a happier group. With classes being held Monday through Thursday, weekend trips have been easily arranged. Different groups have already traveled to Toledo, Barcelona, Segovia and into the mountains to ski.

This year's girls think the guys in the Madrid group are extra special. On Valentine's Day each girl had an original valentine in the mailbox signed by all the fellows. Bill Southwick, the group's newly elected president, considered it such a rare privilege one night to be accompanying nine girls to a concert that he bought each one a pink carnation.

Although the culture is different from that of the campus, the classes are equally demanding. One Spanish custom the Madrid students had very little difficulty adopting was the "siesta."

On the other hand, the hardest custom to adjust to was having lunch served at 1:30 p.m. and dinner at 9:30 p.m. However, Spanish pastry shops have been known to bridge the hunger gap.

Zoo Professor Is President Of Two Groups

A BYU professor of zoology and entomology is currently serving as president of two prominent national scientific societies.

Dr. Wimer W. Tanner assumed the presidency of the Herpetologists' League at the completion of the organization's annual meetings in Boston, Mass., Jan. 1, and also heading the Association of Academies of Science, formerly known as the Academy Conference, an affiliate of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Tanner automatically assumed to serve as president of the 1,200-member league after serving as vice-president. He succeeded Dr. John M. Legler, professor of zoology and entomology at the University of Utah. The international organization is composed of scientists interested in reptiles and amphibians.

Dance Enthusiasts Get Cho Three Dances This Weekend

Campus dance enthusiasts will have three dances to choose from this weekend.

Friday a conventional dance will be held from 9 p.m. until 11 p.m. in the Wilkinson Center Ballroom featuring "Five Deep." Cost is 50 cents.

On Saturday from 9 to 11:30 p.m. the "Consumption Funk" provide music for the contemporary dance in the Cannon Center. Price of admission is 50 cents.

Also on Saturday, a conventional dance will be held in the Little Theater from 9 to 11:30 p.m. Cost is 50 cents.

Blood Speaks At Luncheon

"What is your attitude towards telephone service?" was one of the questions facing guests at a special luncheon Thursday hosted by Mountain States Telephone.

The luncheon, held in the Wilkinson Center, was attended by representatives of various campus groups. "We will in 10 years or so, help create a business called Mountain States Bell will have to operate," said Howard L. Blood, public relations manager from Salt Lake City.

Blood explained that similar luncheon discussions are planned at all four-year colleges throughout Utah. We're trying to determine what people know of the company, how it functions as a business and how it functions within the community," said Blood.

The students participating in the luncheon "were not called to represent their particular groups, but because they are active within their groups and are considered opinion makers," said Blood.

Those attending the luncheon were: Karen Lubick, president; Debrae Chalean; Mark Thompson, conference coordinator for summer conferences; Marmie Brown, v.p.-ASBYU, women's honors program; Brian Walton, ASBYU v.p. of academics; Karen Harrison, Banyan editor; James E. Ferguson, v.p. of student relations; Dion Dittman, president, Vakmox Culture Unit; and Don Ellison, social business manager.

Also representing the telephone company was W. Merrill Hymas, district manager, Provo.
